
3. Summer and Fall of 1799: Montgomery County Courthouse, Norristown

The Court remained at Philadelphia's City Hall at Fifth and Chestnut Streets until 1824, except for a temporary absence during the summer and fall of 1799, when it sought refuge in the Montgomery County Courthouse in Norristown because of the yellow fever epidemic in Philadelphia.