1. 1970 to 1988: Fourth Floor, Berks County Trust Company Building, 35 North Sixth Street

In 1970, Congress enacted legislation authorizing the Eastern District to establish court stations in Allentown and Reading.[7]

Shortly thereafter, the Court leased space on the fourth floor of the Berks County Trust Company building (then known as the American Bank Building) located at 35 North Sixth Street. The six-story building was originally constructed in 1909.

A second courtroom and chambers were later constructed in the building.
