1. 1992 to Present

On October 6, 1992, Congress authorized an additional place for the Eastern District to hold court, in Lancaster, Pennsylvania. See 27 U.S.C. § 118(a) ("Court for the Eastern District shall be held at Allentown, Easton, Lancaster, Reading and Philadelphia."). The President included twenty-seven million dollars for the construction of a new courthouse in Lancaster in his budget proposal for 2010. The U.S. Senate authorized the spending however, the proposed funding was not included in the final budget bill adopted by both houses of Congress that year. The Eastern District remains authorized to hold court in Lancaster, but does not currently have a designated location for court use.
